The case for literacy is clear and remains an international imperative.

A key challenge for literacy education in this decade is that blended learning must be fluid, with students and teachers transitioning seamlessly between home-based virtual learning, school campus-based learning, and hybrid learning scenarios where class cohorts are split between home and school.

LightSail leads the way with built-in modules and features that support these exact scenarios. Tools such as real-time monitoring of student reading activity and a chat functionality between teacher and student maximize engagement without leaving the platform or necessitating the use of other communication tools.

LightSail is intuitive to use and requires no training to get started on the journey to meet and exceed literacy goals.
