Off to Find a Whiff

Off the cliffs, dolphins look spiffy under the fluffy clouds, looking to get into a tiff with a pufferfish. These dolphins want to get a scuff with a pufferfish.

A Tiff with a Pufferfish

Pufferfish puff up to protect their stiff skin giving off a toxin. But the dolphins sniff, huff, and scoff up this stuff, backing off just in time. The toxin sniff dulls a dolphin's mind. This scuff shocks as the dolphins should not be spiffy after the toxin sniff whiff.

Buzzing Off the Pufferfish

Sniff, sniff a whiff for a buzz - the dolphins put the pufferfish in a miff to make them huffy so they puff and emit the toxin. Dolphins try to fluff the pufferfish to get them to puff, so they can huff and puff off.

The Huff and Puff Effect

Dolphins know their stuff like how other fish suffer from the pufferfish. They begin a small tiff with the pufferfish, scoffing and cuffing the pufferfish to the puff moment.

A Huff from the Pufferfish

Dolphins play with the pufferfish, wanting that toxin effect. Pufferfish are not miffed and do not rebuff the dolphin's need for their puffs.
